DETROIT VS. NEW YORK AT DETROIT AUG. 4.—New York won in a game in which each side made a run without a hit, while the deciding tally resulted from a batter hit and a two-base outfield muff. Neither side should have scored. Newton was taken out in the second because of two passes and a wild pitch. Griffith was put off the field for wrangling with the umpires and delaying the game. Owing to cripples, Detroit had five men playing out of position. The score:

M'GUIRE'S NEW "SPEC."

The Famous Catcher of the New York Highlanders Becomes Owner of a Flour Mill Out West.

New York, Aug. 5.—Deacon Jim McGuire is now a miller. Yesterday the Yankee sage became half owner of a flour mill on the Kalamazoo river, four miles from his Albion, Mich., home. Mrs. McGuire is the Deacon's business partner. A few winters ago when the Deacon was reading advance notices of the young catchers who were to be unloaded in the major leagues, he took a mortgage on the mill beside the pool where he used to catch shiners and "punkin seeds" in his boyhood fishing days. While Jeems had been grinding out base hits and chasing young blood back to the home-to-supper leagues, the miller has been slumping badly. A few days ago his average fell so far below the mark his creditors set that the miller withdrew. McGuire's business agent bid the mill in at a sheriff's sale. The Deacon didn't threaten to retire when he heard the news of his new business possession. "I can make flour a long while after I can't steal bases," said the veteran.

Talk of Winter Cuban Trip.

Chicago, July 31.—President Murphy received a letter today from Senor Abel Linares, of Havana, asking him graciously to permit the inhabitants of the island to see the great Chicago team when it shall have the pennant. He requests three weeks' visit from the Spuds late in October or early in November. One of the players who has made the Cuban trip suggested: "Have the mazoumna for the guarantee spiked in some Yankee bank before the boat starts." Under certain conditions the president and the players would like to make the trip.

A Bad Start in the West—The Team Now Going Well—Work of the Players at the Bat and on the Bases—Heydon's Injury.

BY PAUL W. EATON.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 5.—Editor "Sporting Life."—The Washingtons made a nightmare start on their western trip, losing the first seven games in a row, but set a fearful pace when they finally got started, and are now not allowing their opponents any runs at all. Poor batting was the principal cause of the defeats, all the players having fallen below .300. The best hitters have done as follows, including Friday's game: Anderson .283, Altizer .279, Hickman .278, Wakefield .274, Cross .265, Jones .255, Kitson .250. Schaly and Altizer have proved themselves excellent run getters. The former leads the team in to times at bat with .152, though he has only hit for .232. Altizer's run average is .149. Cross is next with .130, and Hickman, whose hits for extra bases help him to avoid being forced and doubled up, has .124. One defeat of the team in Cleveland, four straight knockouts in Chicago, and two overthrows in St. Louis made their constituents wonder if the Nationals would ever win, although the games were all good ones, with two exceptions. On Friday they broke the ice when Tom Hughes shut out the Anheusers in a ten-inning go. Hughes had been doing great work on the bench for a week or two, and evidently concluded to show what he could do. It is all off when Long Tom is in earnest, and the enemy might as well bat with tootpicks. They wouldn't have scored in a thousand years, and Hughes

PERCENTAGE OF RUNS

WON HIS OWN GAME.

by a smack into the seats for a home run. The team was shifted around in this game, Altizer going to right field in place of Stanley, and Nill appearing at short. Charley Jones got back into the game during the Chicago series and has been doing excellent work, but Hickman is still out. Altizer's work in the outskirts has been astronomical, and he made the swell play of the game yesterday when he nailed a man at the plate by a great throw from deep right, with yards to spare. Hoch Altizer! In this game St. Louis suffered its second successive shut-out. Case Patten did the twirling, and the ginger blonde made the heavy hitters look like amateurs.

JOHN ANDERSON

batted in both of the runs made by Washington, and he has passed the hundred mark in base hits, having crossed the line Tuesday, and made four more since that day. Andy's hitting this year has been of the timely sort. Heydon, who was recently doing his best work of the season, had a finger broken in Tuesday's conflict and will probably be out of it for a long time. Wakefield has been doing all the catching since the accident, as he is the only backstop with the club. If anything should happen to him just now Manager Stahl would probably have to go behind the bat. Kittridge is still with Cleveland. By the way, Washington can't be accused of any

LACK OF GENEROSITY

to its fellows, as the local club offered to loan Kittridge to the Bostons during their slump. Why the tender wasn't accepted is "one of those things no feller can find out," as Dundreary would say. The Bostonians lost a lot of games because they had no catcher with whom their pitchers could work to the best advantage, and where could they find a man to handle their delivery better than Kit? It was an unselfish act on the part of Washington to come to the rescue of the only team they had a good chance to beat out. After five games at Detroit and four more at Cleveland, the wanderers will come home August 15. They are going well now, and may yet verify the prediction in this correspondence of six or seven wins on the trip.

THE SPIT BALL PITCHER'S LAY.

By D. N. Blue.

Oh, I am a spit-ball pitcher,
I have things all my own way;
I "expectorate" both on the ball
And AA1 some day.
I don't spit on the street car floors,
Nor on the sidewalks, for
I need all my saliva
And hence don't break the law.

I don't make use of cuspidors,
Nor spittoons, not at all;
All through the game there serves as such
The unoffending ball.
I grasp it in my dainty left—
I wet my fingers—so;
I smear them on the ball and then
And then I let it go.

It sails along unheeding by
The batter standing there;
He swings his willow cleaving but
The thin and fragrant air.
The crowds they cheer; yes, cheer for me;
But friends I'll tell you—hush;
I'm not at all deserving
Of all this excess gush.

The great success that crowns my work
Has not alone been due Unto my humble efforts but
To the brand of gum I chew.
So when you throw bouquets at me
Don't fail to keep back some
And fire 'em at the man who makes Eve's Fruitti-Tutti Gum.
